Krishna vowed the destruction of Dandi's Pándava brothers. A war broke out between the Pándavas and Krishna. The greatest of the gods, who fought fixed by the curse was now about to expire, and as soon as the mare saw Chámundá (or Durgá) on the field of which ends in the discomfiture of his own party by his devout followers, the five Pándava brothers, seems to have deities. Such stories indicate the near approach of Krishna worship. Morally considered, they indicate the subordination of the divine idea to the idea of justice.	222

Sept. 11th	70	8vo.	1st ...	500	Printed	0 4 0	Hem Chandra Banerji.	This is a memoir of the well-known Srimati (commonly called Ráni) Rásmani of Ján Bázar in Calcutta. The circumstances of her parents, her marriage, her position in her husband's family before and after the death of both her husband and her father-in-law, her character as a landlord, as a housewife, as a woman, as a mother are all described at length. She is represented to have been a bold, strong-minded, energetic, benevolent, and even public-spirited woman. The book contains an account of the rise of the Mar family of Ján Bázar, gives a fair idea of the religious side of an orthodox Hindu lady's life, and affords some insight into zenana life and etiquette in a joint and orthodox Hindu family.	347
" 30th	48	16mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 2 0	Prasanna Kumár Kar, Comilla.	The first named 'brata in honor of the god of war, Kártik, is performed for the sake of obtaining children; the second, celebrated on the night of the full moon in the Bengali month of Paush, is performed for the same purpose and for earthly prosperity in general. The book says how these bratas originated, how they were first performed, and what good resulted from their celebration. They are performed chiefly by Hindu women.	348

Sept. 10th	18	18mo. dy.	1st ...	5,000	ditto ...	0 0 3	Calcutta Vernacular Education Society, 23, Chowringhee Road, Calcutta.	A story of a railway journey performed by a native convert to Christianity, so told as to illustrate the nature of a Christian's religious journey, which is divided into four stages, named respectively, peace, joy, holiness, and heaven.	350
Nov. 3rd	24	16mo. ...	1st ...	500	ditto ...	0 0 1	R. M. Lawrence, Midnapur.	An allegory explaining and illustrating a Christian's view of the moral structure and government of the world of man. Satan, the Six Passions, Reason, Jesus Christ, the Apostles, are all introduced as allegorical characters. The Christian scheme of punishment is unfolded, and Hindus, Musalmans, and Brahmas are spoken of as grovelling in error. The object of the publication seems to be to present dogmatic Christian theology to natives of Bengal in an easily intelligible and attractive form.	351
Sept. 10th	16	24mo. ...	1st ...	5,000	ditto ...	0 0 3	Not given	The story of a Musalman convert to Christianity, Wiláyat Ali, who, though he had incurred the displeasure of the Musalman community of Delhi, adhered to his new faith, and died for its sake when he was attacked by a party of the mutineers of 1857, dragged through the streets of Delhi, and threatened with death in the event of his refusing to re-embrace the faith of Islam. The object of the publication is to induce faith in Christianity by exhibiting the strength which it imparts to the mind.	352
Sept. 10th	36	24mo. ...	1st ...	2,000	ditto ...	0 0 6	Not given	Appears to be an authentic story of the life of a native convert girl named Hemángini. She is described as having been a sensible, virtuous, and religious girl, who spent her time in thinking of Christianity and trying to induce others to accept it. Her death scene, the account of which occupies nearly three-fourths of the work, is described as having been one of exemplary resignation and cheerfulness. She died at the age of 13. The work is evidently intended to serve as a recommendation of Christianity to the people of this country.	353

One of these is on the life and character of Rájá Rám Mohan Ráya. Another, on the true condition of Orissa, supports Dr. Hunter's theory of the settlement of that country by the Áryas before their division into castes. A third article describes electricity and magnetism, and two others are devoted to an exposition of the Vedas as represented in the six systems of Hindu philosophy.	90
Oct. 6th	48	8vo. rl.	1st ...	1,800	ditto ...	0 8 0	Sanjib Chandra Chatterji of Kántálpárá.	The essay on the reformation of the Bengali alphabet is finished with the remark that it would be both impracticable and unphilosophical to adopt the system of writing the Indian languages in Roman characters. The writer of an article on Bengal progress is of opinion that Bengal would have prospered better if it had been a mountainous country. There is also an article on the life and character of Asoka.	91

The effect of such visits, says he, is far from satisfactory.	92

Sept. 21st	" 64	Svo. ... 1st ...		1,000	Printed	0 8 0	Dwáráká Náth Bidyábhushan of Changripotá.	In an article on "Sakuntalá and Kalidás," several points connected with ancient Hindu civilization are discussed, and Kalidás himself is presumed,	94 from the form of his name and certain other circumstances, to have been a native of Bengal. The writer of an article on "The treatment of Indian women by the Aryas" holds that the employment of women in ancient India in laborious domestic work was only the result of division of labour, and not a badge of servitude. In other respects, says he, they were on an equal footing with men. The translation of Manu and the Sánkhyá Darsana is continued.
